The Weleda story.

Weleda's heritage dates back to the 1920s, in Switzerland, where philosopher Dr Rudolf Steiner and Dr Ita Wegman developed anthroposophic medicine - a form of medicine that echoes nature's instinctive means of healing.

Weleda places great value on acting in harmony with nature and the human being. We have combined our knowledge of plants and people with well-founded scientific knowledge and respect for the environment.

We strive to use only the finest natural ingredients, where possible, sourced from biodynamic, organic and wild crafted suppliers. Sustainability, fair trade and active protection of plant species are all just a matter of course at Weleda.

Natural skin care from Weleda does not contain any mineral oil-based ingredients, and contains no synthetic perfumes, colourings or preservatives that could affect the skin's natural functions.

When you purchase a Weleda product, you can be assured that you have been part of a process that creates sustainable livelihoods for communities in developing countries and that you have helped make a difference to our world.

Weleda is a member of the UEBT (Union for Ethical BioTrade), a non-profit association which supports local biodiversity. Member companies must only use practices that promote the sustainable use of natural ingredients, while ensuring that all contributors along the supply chain are paid fair prices and share the benefits derived from the use of biodiversity.

Weleda's standards.

Weleda has also earned certification from NATRUE, a non-profit organisation that places high demands on natural and organic ingredients and processes used in preparing natural skin care products. Companies will only be certified if at least 75 per cent of their products meet the strict NATRUE certification standards. For you, the NATRUE logo indicates you can have confidence that you are purchasing an authentic natural product.

Gently massage into wet skin using circular movements over thighs, hips and buttocks to stimulate circulation, eliminate toxins and exfoliate away dead skin cells.

STEP 2. Massage and revitalise Birch Cellulite Oil

During the first four weeks of use, Birch Cellulite Oil should be massaged into the skin with circular movements at least twice a day. For ongoing maintenance, continue with the daily application.

STEP 3. Cleanse and purify Organic Birch Juice

Birch Body Care. revitalise inside and out

Birch Body Care uses the amazing qualities of the organic silver birch (Betula alba) tree, which draws around 70 litres of water per day up through its roots, right through the tree to the leaves and out into the atmosphere. Due to its unique properties, birch has long been used when there is a reduced ability to rid the body of toxins.

Weleda uses birch leaves grown in South Bohemia (the Czech Republic) and hand picked from certified organic wild harvest.

Nourish your scalp to nurture your hair with Weleda's 100% NATRUE certified 'Natural Haircare' products providing exactly what you need - and no more. Free of SLS, parabens, preservatives and artificial ingredients.

The concept of lead plants dates back to Weleda's anthroposophical roots in the 1920's. This philosophy of the harmony of nature and the human being is intrinsic to product development.

Hair and grain have many similarities such as they way they grow, their surface and their structure. And just as grains can only grow in fertile earth, shiny hair can only grow on a healthy scalp.

The Weleda hair care range revitalises your scalp and gives you naturally beautiful hair.

The natural approach to healthy hair.

In line with Weleda's holistic approach, we believe there is much more to haircare than simply washing the hair. Particular importance should be placed on two aspects: a mild but thoroughly cleansing effect and the promotion of a healthy scalp. After all, a healthy scalp is the prerequisite for naturally beautiful hair.

For those converting to natural hair care, the Oat Replenishing Shampoo in combination with the Oat Replenishing Conditioner is ideal. The mild surfactants in Weleda hair care products ensure excellent cleansing despite producing little foam and are tailored to the individual needs of the scalp and hair.

The power of oats for dry and damaged hair.

With dry and damaged hair, the protective shell is under stress. The natural power of the oat supports the hair in establishing a healthy structure and gives it its natural shine and bounciness back.

Thanks to light, air and the heat of the sun, oats produce silicic acid. The roots also draw in substantial water, which makes the silicic acid more viscous and dynamic.

This process is what gives the oats their nourishing and structure-promoting properties. We place great importance on sustainable farming methods. It is important to make sure that plants are harvested and the necessary ingredients extracted optimally to maintain the high quality of the organically grown raw material.
